

Back up an Oracle Database

A database back up can be performed automatically using the Daily Server and Database Hot Back up system job or manually using a `expdp` command. Your database administrator should back up regularly to avoid problems when restoring the database. This section describes how to back up the Oracle database using a `expdp` command, roles required to perform a backup and the backup destination.