Mapping External User Attributes

When a user is imported from an external directory, or when a RiskVision user is automatically created at first login using external authentication, attributes of the external user record are copied, and in some cases converted (mapped), into RiskVision user attributes.